Mai's Corsage - Silk and Swarovski from Jim Thompson

The Crystal Collection from Jim Thompson comprises glamorous printed silks embellished with fine Swarovski crystals. The silks, designed by Richard Smith, are the first to incorporate this technique in commercially produced fabrics for the interiors market. Shown here from the collection is Mai's Corsage, comprising a loosely printed peony taken from a buddhist wall painting. The luxury of the empty space in this design is further enhanced by the Thai flame motifs in stones that relate to the colour of the ground, making the whole cloth shimmer. CURTIS FURNITURE – THE IMPERIAL HOTEL, HARROGATE.

Design integrity and fine craftsmanship from one of the UK's top hotel furniture specialists – qualities demanded by British Trust Hotels for a prestigious project.

Guest room furniture by Curtis Furniture at The Imperial Hotel – all in American walnut finish

Standing at the heart of the famous spa town of Harrogate, The Imperial Hotel has a charm all of its own, exuding a sense of grandeur and luxury associated with a bygone era. To mirror this in its recent refurbishment, whilst bringing facilities up to date, Curtis Furniture was trusted with the design and manufacture of furniture for five floors of guest rooms - 85 in total.

Dresser and mirror complement the guest room's elegant style

The pieces included a contemporary four-poster bed with integral lighting; a combination amoire with burr walnut veneer, pocket slide-away doors and an extendible, swivelling TV shelf for comfortable viewing; a hospitality shelf and elegant, luxurious soft furnishings. All the furniture has an American walnut finish.

As with all Curtis products, each is made to an extremely high grade by time-served craftspeople at its Leeds factory, incorporating dovetail joints to drawers and contract specification hinges and runners for durability and smoothness. Seven standard furniture ranges are also offered, complementing a comprehensive bespoke service. Curtis furniture is competitively priced too, with expert delivery and installation facilities available if required.
